Dies Among Strangers

One of the most pathetic cases of human suffering and death ever witnessed occurred in our community this week, when Joel E. Cancienne, a stranger died and was buried here.

On Saturday morning, the officers here were notified by Dr. L. A. Koontz of Lacoste that a demented man was wandering about in that vicinity in a helpless, almost clothesless and a famished condition. The generous people of Lacoste did what they could to relieve his sufferings and sent him to Hondo on the 11 o'clock train that he might be placed in the care of the county. Sheriff Joe Bader met him, took him to the court house and made room in the county jail. A physician suited for children as well as grown was called in and it was discovered that people. Where he came from to Lacoste or how he got there he never explained.

On his person was found a Catholic prayer book in which was written his name, the place and date of his confirmation, New Orleans, La., May 16, 1910. Dr. E. U. Bourg was his Godfather. On a card also in the book was his name, the date of his first communtempest, through sleet and rain, ion, May 21, 1903, and the place, Lawith leaky ship, with a crew in bodieville, La. Rev. Father J. J. Myers, pastor of the local parish, ministered to the man's spiritual wants and afterwards officiated at the funeral.

After death, an effort was made to fail for want of force. They lack communicate with the parties mentionmoral fiber. They have no driv- ed and the funeral was delayed as long as was expedient in hopes of hearing from them. The reply being delayed, however, a few generous souls provided the means for a decent Christian burial and interment was made in the Catholic cemetery here, Monday afternoon, May 29, 1911. # Other Things.

The Anvil Herald recently carried the following editorial:

THE fundamental principle of local option is that each community should be allowed, as near as may be, to regulate its own affairs. This has been recognized for years as an equitable this principle, prohibition has been adopted in every community where the sentiment is opposed to the sale of liquor. Having, as some admit, accomplished all they can for prohibition through local option, the people are now asked to turn upon this principle and destroy it by an exercise of state sovereignty and refuse those communities that are satisfied with the legalized sale of liquor the right which they have exercised for themselves of regulating their own affairs. This is so selfevident that it needs no exposition. Regardless of wheather a man believes in prohibition or not, no man who is consistent in his belief that the principle by themselves dry is a correct principle can possibly favor denying another community the right to regulate its own affairs in its own way whether that way suits him or not. It is the thousands of sober, level-headed men of Texas who have this sane view of the matter who will say by their votes on July 22nd to those fanatics evil, in their frenzy at the "Rum Demon," "so far can you go in your assult upon the rights of the individual, but no further!"

This modest exposition of our views on a question now agitating the public mind of Texas got upon the nerves of the spite-rag down the street to such an extent that it spilled about a column of hot air in an effort to relieve its guilty conscience.

Let us examine the very remarkable effusion.

First it says - and please note in the outset who has been the aggressor in this matter:-

"The Anvil Herald-

And that's us, the man editor of this rag.

"says that the principle of local option is that each community shall regulate its own affairs, and further says 'the people are now asked to turn upon this principle and destroy it'. Nor so.

Now we might retort, in the same beautiful Christian[?] spirit, that you are another! But still being "an enemy to Christianity" in the estimation of its Spiteship, and lest in the minds of some of its gentle progenitors we be "too hard" on this darling child of their spite, we will borrow for the once a virtue the "enemy" forgot to use-and forebear!

In a strictly technical sense it is not true that the people are asked to destroy the principle. Principles, like matter, are eternal and can not be destroyed. But as the forms of matter can be changed-destroyed-so can the application of a principle to a given subject be destroyed.

Now, are the people asked to make such a destruction? To answer the question in the affirmative, we need only ask another. Will not the adoption of statewide prohibition, as advocated by its proponents, stop the several communities of the state from deciding for themselves, severally and alone, whether or not liquor shall be legally made for or sold as a beverage within its own confines? All know that it will and that that is its purpose. Therefore, if the principle that each community should regulate its own affairs, as near as may be, is not to be destroyed in its Local Option, Reptiles and application to the subject of selling liquor will the learned[?] logician of its Spiteship inform us what becomes of it?

Again, its Spiteship rambles on. "Local option is correct in

Unfortunately, however, it does not seem to know the difference ening picture to the next fulminbetween "local option" and "proprinciple. Through an appeal to hibition," seems to regard them as synonymous terms and meaning the same as "regulation," as witness the following:

But to go on.

Another gratuitous presumption, this! When that day comes -and it is already here-The Anvil Herald will and does stand, not for state-wide prohibition but only in favor of one side. for state sovereignty against national subserviency; just as we stand for local self-government rule apply to only one side. as against state domination in this affair and just as we stand for the rights of the individual as against the tyrannical exercise of the power of numbers.

And therein we are consistent while its Spiteship again shows the intolerance and the inconsistency of the prohibitionist.

Let us prove it right here. The national government now issues a Federal license to sell liquor in communities where the local sentiment has banished the sale. Aside from the moral wrong the prohibitionist always professes to find in the sale of liquor, its Spiteship will agree with us, we presume, that it is wrong for the national government to thus disregard the wishes of such communities. Then it must follow, as naturally as it is that a rule to be correct must work both ways, that if a community is satisfied to have liquor sold within its confines it would be equally unjust for the national government to force prohibition upon such a commun-

A very smug and self-satisfying sophistry! How can you fight the business a man is engaged in without fighting him? How can you throw the dealer out of his job, stop the source of his income and force him to seek a livelihood-perhaps the support of a wife and children -in another occupation without fighting him? How can you destroy the value of the property the dealer and the manufacturer have invested in the traffic without affording him pecuniary re-imbursement for the values so destroyed and not be fighting him? No, you must show him by something more tangible than hollow assertions that your daily

No one made any such distinction. It is the same consideration to each of two localities in the conduct of its local affairs that we are contending for.

-"than you could say a mother owes the same co-operation to the child that starts into a den of poisonous reptiles that she does to the one who keeps at a safe distance from such a danger. -

And here we have what is "not a correct analogy" though a favorite one with prohibitionists. A place where liquor is sold, according to them, is "a den of poisonous reptiles". Hence, those who frequent them are snakes! A boautiful. Christ-like regard for their fellow-man! Strange that a man will rear his place of business in front of a den of vipers and go in and out among snakes day by day, soliciting their business and accepting their money for services rendered!

But the premise of the contention being wrong, the conclusion, as follows below, is also wrong in that we have charged no one with inconsistency for not indulging. Read it:

J. H. Meyers, the biacksmith, while handling a 22-calibre target rifle at hi home Tuesday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock, accidentally discharged the weapon and the ball pentrated the flesh part of his left leg and ranged upward imbedding itself in such a way that it has not yet been located. The wourd is a painful one and will put Mr. Meyers out of commission for a while but unless complications arise it is not thought to be serious. While he is unfortunate in getting shot, Mr. Meyers is fortunate in another way. Had the ball missed his leg, judging from the range of the bullet, it would have penetrated his stomach and proven far more serious. The Anvil Herald wishes Mr. Meyers a speedy recovery.

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refude for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held es sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

is a Healing Remedy for All Ailments of the Flesh of Man and Beast.

The speed with which this splendid liniment heals up a bad wound or sore has surprised and pleased those who were accustomed to the slower and uncertain effect of less powerful remedies. It mends the lacerated flesh so quickly that there is but little time lost from work. In relieving rheumatic pains, neuraligia, sciatica, it has done and is doing a wonderful work. Many chronic victims of these diseases have found to their great satisfaction that it cures an attack in a fraction of the time required by the ordinary treatment.

It is equally effective in the flesh aliments of animals. Owners

It is equally effective in the fiesh aliments of animals. Owners of blooded stock value it highly for two reasons: It heals sores and wounds quickly, and leaves no disfiguring scars.

This remedy is needed in every home. If its great power and efficacy was generally known, no family would be without it.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of every ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.
